THE HIGHWAY COW.

The hue of her hide was dusky brown
Her body was lean and her neck was slim,
One horn turned up and the other turned down,
She was keen of vision and long of limb;
With a Roman nose and a short stump tail,
And ribs like the hoops of a home-made pail.

Many a mark did her body bear;
She had been a target for all things known;
On many a scar the dusky hair
Would grow no more where it once had grown;
Many a passionate, parting shot
Had left upon her a lasting spot.

Many and many a well-aimed stone,
Many a brickbat of goodly size,
And many a cud gel swiftly thrown,
Had brought the tears to her loving eyes;
Or had bounded off from her bony back,
With a noise like the sound of a rifle crack.

Many a day had she passed in the pound
For heeding herself to her neighbor's corn;
Many a cowardly cur and hound
Had been transferred on her crumpled horn;
Many a teaser and elf in pail
Had the farmer tied to her time-worn tail.

Old Deacon Gray was a pious man,
Though sometimes tempted to be profane,
When weary a weary mile to run
To drive her out of his growing grain.
Sharp were the pranks she used to play
To get her fill and to get away.

She knew when the Deacon went to town;
she wisely watched him when he went by;
He never passed her without a frown
And an evil glance from each angry eye;
He would crack his whip in a surly way
And drive along in his "one-horse shay."

Then at his homestead she loved to call,
Lifting the bars with or implet horn;
Nimbly scaling his garden wall,
Helping herself to his standing corn;
Eating his cabbage, one by one,
Injuring home when her work was done.

Its human passions were quick to rise.
And striding forth with a savage cry,
With fury blazing from both its eyes,
As lightnings flash in a summer sky,
Redder and redder his face would grow,
And after the creature he would go.

Over the garden, round and round,
Breaking his pear and apple trees,
Tramping his melons into the ground,
Overturning his hives of bees;
Leaving him angry and badly stung,
Wishing the old cow's neck was wrung.

The mosses grew on the garden wall;
The years went by with their work and play;
The boys of the village grew strong and tall,
And the gray-haired farmers passed away,
One by one, as the red leaves fall,
But the highway cow ou lived them all.

Select Story.

A JEALOUS HUSBAND.

[Translated from the French by Jerome A. Hart, in San Francisco Argonaut, June 1881.]

It was the day before the shooting season began. Hunters were pouring out from Paris in all directions. Two might have been seen leisurely proceeding toward the Sceaux Station, but coming from different directions. Both were accoutred elegantly from jaunty cap to leathern gaiters; both carried a fine gun and handsome game bag; both remarked with satisfaction the effect their costumes produced on the female heart; in short, both were Parisians and hunters. But one was old and the other was young. Full sixty years must have been needed to grizzle the locks of the one; but twenty three had passed over the other's head.

The elder reached the station a few moments before the other. He entered an empty compartment, but scarcely had he done so when the door opened, and the younger hunter entered. They stared at each other for a moment, but it was the elder who spoke first.

"My dear Boisgibert, I am delighted to see you," he said, pressing the other's hand with simulated warmth.

"And I, too, Prethibaut," returned the young man, "am enchanted. What is it Thingummy says now? 'Thrice blessed is——'"

"Perhaps you mean, 'Thrice blessed is't to meet a friendly face,'" replied the other.

"Yes, that's it. Who was the fellow that said it, now? It was—it was——"

"Lamartine?" asked the other, dryly.

"Ah, yes, that's the man—Lamartine. Strange I could not think of it."

"Very," replied Prethibaut. "But now I think of it, De Musset was the author of the line."

"Yes, so he was," replied the other, coloring; "he's one of my favorite authors, you know."

Outwardly Prethibaut replied with a grunt. Inwardly he said: "The same as ever. What an ass the fellow is!"

On the other hand, Boisgibert bit his lip, and muttered: "Confound the old fool; as pedantic as ever."

These two gentleman were about to make a reasonably long railway journey together.

After a lengthy silence, Prethibaut began:

"I see you are in hunting rig. Might I ask where you are bound?"

"Yes; I'm going to Verrieres. Fine shooting at that Chateau."

"What! Has Vaugiron invited—" Prethibaut interrupted, but suddenly stopped.

"Yes, Vaugiron has asked me to come down to Verrieres and open the shooting season with him. And you—where are you going, Prethibaut?"

"To Verrieres."

"What—you also?" Boisgibert's tone expressed astonishment, but certainly not pleasure.

"Oh, yes. For ten years I have opened the season there. It wouldn't do for me to miss one."

"How fortunate we chanced to meet!" said Boisgibert, in a tone as destitute of emotion as is the creak of a door.

"It was indeed a happy chance," replied Prethibaut, with the inflection of a man who bids his creditor come to-morrow.

And while their lips distilled honeyed words they were full of bitterness within. Prethibaut's reflections were something like this:

"How in the fiend's name could Vaugiron be so idiotic as to invite this becurled popinjay to his house? I did not think him so stupid—so husband like, so to speak—as that. When a man of fifty-two marries a girl of nineteen, he should not invite handsome young-dandies to spend weeks at his house. And more particularly should he not invite a dandy who was her slave all last Winter, who was always waltzing with her, who always turned her music for her when she played, who always had an orchestra seat when she was in her box. And yet Vaugiron—stupid yet hospitable Vaugiron—he invites this fellow beneath his roof. Well, well!"

On the other hand, Boisgibert's brain was no less busy. His reflections ran something like this:

"I wonder why that blockhead follows me so persistently? For the past year he seems to have exercised a sort of espionage on me. He seems to have divined my secret, too. And yet he is not a relative of Madame Vaugiron. Confound the old idiot! Some one told me he was in Switzerland, and here I find him on his way to Verrieres."

The two men scowled at each other, and then smothered their faces into expressionlessness. The train rolled on. Boisgibert drew an immense cigar from his case, and lighted it. Then as if he had just thought of it—

"O, excuse me. I believe tobacco is disagreeable to you."

"No, sir; by no means, sir; you are dreaming, sir," retorted Prethibaut; "I smoke like a chimney, sir," and lighting a larger cigar he puffed away defiantly.

At the expiration of ten minutes the two gentlemen were so shrouded in smoke that they could not see across the compartment.

But all things have an end. The train at last reached the expected station and there was Vaugiron's carriage awaiting them. A brisk drive of a few minutes across the country, and they were at Verrieres.

As they descended in the court-yard, Vaugiron advanced. He pressed Prethibaut warmly by the hand, greeted Boisgibert with less warmth, and bade the servant show the latter gentleman to his room.

"As for you my old friend," said he to Prethibert, "come into the garden, and let us seat ourselves over there in the summer house. I have something I want to say to you. I want to ask your advice."

"But will you follow it?"

"Of course, since I ask it."

"But that does not follow any more than you do. People are always asking advice; they rarely follow it. Last year in this very month, and where we now sit, you asked my opinion as to whether you should marry. I advised you to live and die a bachelor. Well, three months after that I had to pretend to be glad when I saw you hanged—I mean married."

Vaugiron viciously kicked a pebble on the gravel walk before him.

"Well, what is it about?" said Prethibaut.

Vaugiron paused a while. "Well," said he, reluctantly, "it's about my wife."

"What," said Prethibaut, "Already?"

"Come," said Vaugiron, impatiently, don't be getting idiotic ideas into your head. I have nothing to reproach her with."

"But you have something on your mind."

"Yes, I have. I am jealous"

"Of Maurice Boisgibert."

"How do you know?"

"I know, because I have seen—"

"Seen," shouted Vaugiron, bounding from his seat. "Seen! seen! What have you seen?"

"Come, now," said Prethibaut, "don't be getting any idiotic ideas into your head. I have seen nothing alarming. I have seen, however, that the young puppy, Boisgibert, is altogether too attentive to your wife."

"Well, that's what I wanted to speak about. The fellow has presumed to address some verses to her."

"What are they about?"

"What are they about? Oh, what all poets write about—moon on the waves, stars, and flowers, gentle zephyrs, angels, gondolas, sympathetic souls, and all sorts of idiotic things."

"Naturally," said Prethibaut. "I might have known it But how did you come to see this letter?"

"Why, Hortense brought it to me herself, of course."

"She did, eh? Well, Vaugiron, I congratulate you on your wife. Now listen to me. Will you follow my advice?"

"Blindly."

"Whatever I may say or do, you will not contradict or oppose me?"

"I promise."

"Very well, then. Young Boisgibert will not favor us with his company during the shooting season. Here is what you must do; to-night, at dinner, when you see me take a pinch of snuff, strike the table with your fist, and say, in a cavernous voice: 'I would do the same.'"

"Hum," said Vaugiron, "a cavernous voice, a pinch of snuff, and a blow on the table. Why—what—how—"

"Never mind," said Prethibaut; "do as I tell you, old boy, and you're all right."

* * * * * * * * *

That evening were gathered around Vaugiron's festive board eight gentlemen. Six vacant chairs showed that the ladies had left them. Unnumbered empty bottles showed that they were good hunters and true. But one man had attempted to escape and join the ladies. Several times Boisgibert made a move, but Prethibaut would invariably ask, with much kindness, "Are you not well this evening, sir?" so he was forced to remain.

Of all the merry crowd, Prethibaut alone seemed preoccupied. There was a gloomy expression upon his face, and it finally attracted attention.

"What's the matter with you to-night, Prethibaut?" asked one of the guests; "you look as if you were at a funeral."

"Pardon me, gentlemen," replied the gloomy one, "there are certain anniversaries in a man's life—but no; the story is not a pleasant one."

"Never mind—what's the odds? Go on and tell it any way," was the cry.

"Very well, gentleman," said Prethibaut placing his snuff box on the table before him, and gazing on it with deep melancholy, "I will tell you the story. Thirty-five years ago to-day I was the chief actor in a domestic tragedy."

"You!" interrupted Vaugiron, "you in a domestic tragedy?"

For reply Prethibaut favored his friend with a violent kick under the table and went on:

"At that time I was but twenty five, my life was peaceful and happy. I had a wife whom I adored, a daughter whom I idolized."

"What, you!" bawled Vaugiron.

"Yes," went on Prethibaut, giving him another kick: "My estate was in the Ardennes, and I was a passionate hunter. Adjoining my property was that of a man a little younger than I. He was about the same age as Maurice Boisgibert here, and, by the way he much resembled him. Well, we often met; we became friends. He came to my house, and—gentlemen, but my blood boils when I think of it—he wrote some verses to my wife."

"Well, I sought him out. I told him that one of us must die; that in order to avoid scandal, we would load our pieces with buckshot, conceal ourselves on both sides of the trail, and when a boar was driven by us we would fire—but not at the boar.

"It was done. Thirty-five years ago to-day we lay crouched there, glaring at each other across the trail. Whether a consciousness of guilt had unnerved my friend's hand, or not, I do not know, yet I was uninjured. But both loads from my gun struck him and he fell back, his head and breast pierced with balls, a mangled, bleeding corpse. There is not more to tell. I was arrested and released, as on the surface it was accidental. My wife died in a mad house; my daughter died shortly after, and now I am alone. Can you wonder gentlemen that I am melancholy when the years bring round again the day on which I slew my friend?"

He shook his head gloomily, and took a pinch of snuff.

Vaugiron struck the table a violent blow, which made the glasses ring.

"I would do the same," he cried. "You were perfectly right. I would do the same."

At breakfast the next morning it was noticed that Maurice Boisgibert was absent. The host found a note from him at his plate however which he read aloud:

M. Boisgibert has received a letter which forces him to leave for Paris at once. Important business. He begs M. Vaugiron to receive his excuses, and much regrets that he cannot remain with the pleasant party at the Chateau de Verrieres.

"Well," said Prethibaut, in a whisper to the host, "What did I tell you?"

"Prethibaut," replied Vaugiron, with an admiring glance, "what a dreadful liar you are!"

Rivers of Molten Lava.

Private advices from the Sandwich Islands report that the famous volcano, Mauna Loa, is still in eruption, and has been continuously so since the early part of October. The inhabitants say that the present eruption exceeds in grandeur, extent and activity any that they can remember, or of which there is any record. The American residents say that the spectacle is magnificent, and well worth a voyage thither. The principle crater, some 16,000 feet long and 9,000 to 10,000 feet wide, is constantly belching forth smoke, steam and flames, and occasionally throws up vast rocks, while the lava pours down the sides of the mountain, nearly 14,000 feet high in broad streams. A letter received some time ago from Honolulu said: "For some months the people of the island of Hawaii have been greatly excited by the eruption of the volcano Mauna Loa which far exceeds any former outbreak of that celebrated mountain of fire. The eruption began early in the evening on the 5th of October, a few miles north of the summit crater, and flowed rapidly down to the plateau lying between Kea and the Mauna Loa. It formed two branches, one running toward the old crater of Kilauea, and the other toward the east. On being first observed, it was seen that the great stream of liquid fire was making its way toward Kea. But early on Saturday morning, some twelve hours after the outbreak, it was noticed that a second flow appeared, and was rapidly running in the direction of the beautiful town of Hilo. Immediately there was the utmost alarm, and for a time there was every fear that the place was destined to be overwhelmed. But before the stream had reached half the distance to a deep wood, which stands in the way, it suddenly, and without any apparent reason, turned abruptly to the northward. So the flow continued until Wednesday, October 13th, when the two streams ran beside each other for a considerable distance, presenting one of the grandest sights which could possibly be witnessed. From both rivers of red hot matter there ascended dense columns of steam and smoke, and these, as they went upward and united for a time, formed an arch-like avenue, through which there could for miles be seen the dull glare of the boiling and bubbling mass which steadily moved on its way. Suddenly, here and there, great cones would be thrown up, and again streams of lava, as if unable to find a vent in any other direction, were forced upward in columns to the height of scores of feet. For more than thirty miles from the outlet the liquid fire rolled on, the width of the streams being from one hundred to two hundred yards, and their depth varying from six and eight to twenty and thirty feet, according to the nature of the ground over which they made their way. In places, too, their front edge rose to a height of thirty feet, presenting the appearance of an advanced wall of fire. From this mass great blocks of matter continually crumbled and broke off, falling with a dull crash which cannot be described. As has been intimated, if the lava continues to flow in the direction which it has now taken, there will be hardly any danger of its doing any damage to Hilo. Running as it does, it would have to fill up the great valley of Pun Olo and Wallukn swamps before reaching the neighborhood of the town. Still there is a danger that a stream may strike and follow the course of the "flow" of 1855-56, which lasted thirteen months, and sent the burning lava over an area estimated at three hundred square miles. If it should take this course it would in all probability go to and beyond Hilo. Still, it is at present twenty-one miles from that place, and the prospect is that the town will escape. Holealoh, on the contrary, is in the greatest danger. But while there is in any event more than a probability that much fixed property will be lost, there is but little danger of loss of life. The flow of lava is so slow and regular that it can easily be avoided and all movables of value taken out of its course.

How She Recognized Him.

—Mrs. Julius Brown's husband, says the San Francisco Post, was one of the passengers on the "State of California" during its last trip, in which it was detained four days over time. Mrs. B. bore her anxiety with commendable fortitude until the third day. She was taking lunch with some friends at a restaurant, where the waiter helped her to some shrimp salad in a glass that contained a small portion of whiskey. She had only eaten a few mouthfuls when she burst into tears. "What's the matter, Mrs. Brown?" said the company, much surprised. "Why," sobbed the poor woman, "m-m-my worst fears are realized. I know that poor Julius has been drowned. Just taste these shrimps." And as there was no denying that they tasted exactly like old Brown, the widow was conducted home. She had just decided that she would look exceedingly well in black when the steamer arrived.

A Glass Snake.

Along the Upper Brazos and in western Texas, where flourished the horned frog, is the strangest snake known to naturalists. He is sometimes called the glass snake. He is from two to four feet long, with a striped back. He is not poisonous. His way of defending himself when attacked by a powerful foe is similiar to that of the possum or skunk. Instead of flying back he brakes into a dozen pieces, and every piece, distinct in itself, lies apparently dead on the ground. Sometimes the pieces are a foot apart. When the foe disappears the pieces grad ually come together, unite in one snake and crawl off. The naturalist will naturally ask if the pieces are entirely separated. I answer they are. No film or tendom holds them together. You can chop the ground with an ax between the pieces. Mr. H. Edwards, whose post office address is Montgomery, Alabama, showed me one of these snakes at Waco. He still ha it alive, and will prove, with the living snake or by answering a letter from any naturalist the accuracy of this story. The glass snake which Mr. Edwards showed me had lost the tip of its tail. When I asked the owner how it happened, he said: "The snake went to pieces one day and before it got together a hungry kingsnake, which I still have, swallowed the tail." Mr. Edwards has several kingsnakes. Like the glass snake they are not poisonous; still they kill the largest snake in the bottoms. They make a spring at a large snake or rabbit, coil instantly around its neck and strangle it—choke it to death. A king snake five feet long will strangle a dog or a rattlesnake. The only snake able to defend itself against the king snake is the glass snake. When the king snake springs at the glass snake the glass snake breaks into pieces and its foe might as well try to strangle a basket of clothes-pins or a pail-ful of sardines.—Eli Perkins' Texas Letter.

A Small Boy's Explanation.

It was Sunday evening. Angelica had invited her "best young man" to the evening meal. Everything passed off harmoniously until Angelica's seven-year-old brother broke the blissful silence by exclaiming:

"Oh ma! yer outer seen Mr. Lighted the other night, when he called to take Angie to the drill, he looked so nice sittin' long side of her with his arm—"

"Fred!" screamed the maiden, whose face began to assume the color of a well done crab—quickly placing her hand over the boy's mouth.

"Yer oughter seen him" continued the persistent informant, after gaining his breath, and the embarrassed girl's hand was removed; "he had his arm—"

"Freddie!" shouted the mother, as in her frantic attempts to reach the boy's auricular appendage, she upset the contents of the teapot in Mr. Lighted's lap, making numerous Russian war maps over his new lavender pantaloons.

"I was just goin' to say," the half frightened boy pleaded, between a cry and an injured whine, "he had his arm—"

"You boy!" thundered the father, "away to the wood shed."

And the boy made for the nearest exit, exclaiming as he waltzed, "I was only going to say Mr. Lighted had his army clothes on, and leave it to him if he didn't!"

And the boy was permitted to return, and the remainder of the meal was spent in explanations from the family in regard to the number of times Freddie had to be "talked to" for using his fingers for a ladle.

How a Baboon Dines.

Harry, the large Chacma baboon in the Philadelphia "Zoo," has been taught to dine in a civilized fashion. The first alpaca coat put on him he tore in shreds, and at first he opposed dining at a table very vigorously, but he soon grasped the idea that if he did as his keeper wanted him to he would be rewarded with a lump of sugar, and after that he became a very apt scholar. He has recently been fitted out with a blue canvass coat trimmed with red and white bands, and buttons as large as trade dollars. He now takes his meals in public, a special table having been built for him. The first meal is given to him at 11 o'clock in the morning and the next at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. At a sign from the keeper he seats himself upon the stool and demurely waits to be helped. The bill of fare varies, consisting of rice, sweet potatoes, bread and butter, milk, &c., given at different times. Saturday he was allowed sweet potatoes and tea, with several lumps of sugar. As the keeper sliced the potatoes the baboon leisurely and demurely picked up the pieces and placed them in his mouth, taking from the cup, which he held in both hands, a draught of tea occasionally. When the meal was finished he took a roll in the grass and then, at a sign, jumped on the keeper's back and was carried part of the way to his inclosure. Before the summer is over the young female baboon will be put through a similar course of training, so she can take the place at the table now occupied by the keeper.

A Muldoon Sinner.

Elder Hallenbeck was preaching in Hayes Valley, California, some time ago, when the most "solid" citizen in that section arose and proceeded to make a few remarks. He rather pompously told how he had become converted, and then went on to say that the revival had his entire approbation, and that he was on the whole, quite satisfied with the results accomplished. He hoped his example would greatly encourage those around him, and he wished it understood that should it be needed he was quite Democratic State Committee.

There will be a meeting of the Democratic State Committee at Bolton's Hotel, Harrisburg, at 12 m., on Wednesday, August 10, to determine upon a time and place for holding the next State Convention. A full attendance of the members of the committee is requested.

A. H. DILL,
Chairman.

Maud S. doesn't beat her record, with the most provoking regularity. This sort of thing is becoming monotonous, and will not draw crowds much longer

The deeper the rottenness at Harrisburg is probed, the more foul are the exhalations. The Harrisburg Independent comes to the aid of the Press and prints a series of swindles in furniture, carpeting and repairs which are fully as bad as the stationery steals.

If the Democrats of this county would save themselves from the misfortune of nominating any man for office who will be defeated at the fall election, they must turn out at the delegate election and see to it that instructions are voted for no one but sound and reliable Democrats.

The authorities of Missouri are evidently determined to punish the ruffians who robbed the railroad train at Winston, and killed the conductor and a passenger. The Governor has issued a proclamation offering a reward of $50,000 for their arrest and conviction. For their capture $20,000 will be given.

When the XLVIIth Congress meets next December there will be 37 Republicans, 38 Democrats (including David Davis of Illinois) and 1 Readjuster Democrat (General Mahone) in the Senate. There were elected to the House 148 Republicans, 135 Democrats, 8 Greenbackmen and 2 Readjuster Democrats.

Rule III of chapter III of the Democratic rules provides that "no person shall be eligible to a nomination by a Convention, who has opposed the Democratic ticket at the next preceding election." It would be a matter of interest just now to know whether A. B. Herring voted for Hancock or Weaver last fall.

Col. John C. Burch, Secretary of the United States Senate, is dead and the election of his successor, in December, it is thought, may lead to another dead lock. The Democrats are in the majority, if the new Senators from New York are not sworn in, and may insist upon electing the Secretary before admitting the Senators.

The entire surgical force of the New York Herald are engaged just now in the effort to convince the readers of that tremendous journal that the President's physicians do not understand their business. Up to this time they have convinced everybody—in the Herald office. The other districts haven't been heard from.

Charley Wolfe being the prime mover in the effort to obtain five hundred dollars extra for each member of the legislature, over and above the salary he is entitled to by law, he will do well to abandon his campaign for the gubernatorial chair until the people have had time to forget his greed for gain.—Bradford Era.

Bless you, Charley did not care for the money, it was the judicial decision he was after. Now he is, probably, happy.

"The Democratic politicians who a month ago were laughing over the division in the Republican party and predicting its early downfall are not so happy as they were," the Knoxville Chronicle says.

Why not? Does the Chronicle imagine that the recent transactions at Albany have bridged the chasm between the warring factions of the Republican party? If so, it may have reason to change its opinion before the next election. Without Roscoe Conkling's aid, New York will be hopelessly Democratic.

The Americans are carrying everything before them on the other side on turf, field, and farm. They have now become, to use the English slang, "all the cheese." The silver medal for the best cheese at the Birmingham show has been born away by Mr. Jubal Webb, who has been styled "The Cheese Fiend," in consequence of his indefatigable exertions in procuring the best cheese to be had in America. The one which obtained the prize is pronounced the largest cheese ever made, weighing three-quarters of a ton, and came from Iowa.

Those who assert that we oppose the nomination of A. B. Herring, in the interest of any other candidate, are greatly mistaken. Our action has been prompted only by a desire to prevent the Democratic party from nominating a man who could not be elected, as many earnest members of the party could not conscientiously vote for him. All wanderers should be welcomed back to the fold, but the proper place for them is in the ranks, and not as commissioned officers. Deserters from the army are not usually made captains, even though they return repentant.

The city of Baltimore is in an enviable position. It is well governed. A new proof of this is given in the construction of the Gunpowder Water Works. Several years ago the people voted $4,000,000 to construct the works. A magnificent tunnel, seven miles long, a great part of it through solid rock, was cut; and now the works are completed, and there remains $37,000 of the appropriated $4,000,000 unexpended. This circumstance, however, has its parellel in the history of the City Hall of the same city, for which $2,000,000 were appropriated. After it was entirely completed the Building Commission had over $100,000 unexpended money on hand.

The trustees of the burial place in which repose the bones of William Penn, have respectfully but firmly declined to permit the removal of the great Proprietor to this country. Mr. Harrison, the gentleman sent abroad to make negotiations has been so informed and is inclined to be disgusted with the barren results of his trip across the Atlantic. The proposition to secure the remains of Penn, was an enthusiastic outburst on the part of the legislature and, of course, had to be saddled with some expense. The average citizen does not comprehend why it was necessary to send Mr. Harrison abroad at quite an expense, when the information desired could have been obtained by mail or cable without much expenditure of money.

The President continues to improve steadily and his physicians say that he is practically out of danger. A relapse might occur from over-exertion when the President begins to walk about, but no such trouble is anticipated. He has a good appetite and is rapidly gaining strength. The day of recovery is not far distant.

The Philadelphia papers are waging vigorous war against six cent fares on the street railways. There is a very large and well developed opinion that the companies can make money with tickets at five cents. This is rendered more positive by President Wharton of the Lombard and South street line, who offers to pay $12,000, and city and State taxes, for the privilege of running tracks on Market street, and yet charge only five cent fares. The papers will win in this fight and the people may thank them for the release from the grasp of the greediest and most obstinate of monopolies.

The assassin Guiteau has written a long letter to Judge Wylie of the Criminal Court of the District of Columbia asking that he be admitted to bail. He suggests that the amount be fixed at $1,500, which he regards as a reasonable sum. He believes he can give bond in that amount for trial when he is wanted. Guiteau says that he is a lawyer, having been admitted to practice at the Chicago bar, and he regards himself competent to conduct his own case. For cool impudence, this letter can hardly be surpassed. Guiteau evidently has but a faint idea of the gravity of his offense, or of the aversion in which he is held by the people. Judge E. R. Hoar of Massachusetts has expressed his opinion that Guiteau has been hardly treated and, perhaps, will offer himself as bondsman, unless he desires to act as counsel for the defense.

A MURDEROUS ROAD.

Last Sunday a carriage containing six persons was struck by a locomotive, at the Ninth and Oxford street crossing of the Reading R. R. in Philadelphia. The vehicle was broken into kindling wood and the occupants thrown out, but fortunately escaped with their lives. The accident was caused by the flagman who made contradictory signals. The Press publishes an account of the disaster and supplements it with the statement that, from December 10th 1879 to November 30th 1880, no less than 86 persons were killed and 101 wounded in accidents on the Reading road. There can be no doubt that such slaughter as this could have been prevented by more care on the part of the railroad officials. On a road over which hundreds of trains run, into a crowded city, all possible precautions should be taken to prevent accidents, and it is surprising that the city authorities do not compel the officers of the road to better protect the people.

LOCATING THE BULLET.

On Monday last, an effort was made to determine the whereabouts of the bullet in the President's body, by means of the induction balance, a new invention of Prof. Bell. The experiment was successful, the instrument ticking loudly when passed over a black and blue spot which made its appearance four days after the shooting. Dr. Bliss admitted that the position of the ball had been found and added, "It lies five inches below the navel and three and one-half inches to the right of the median line, and is imbedded, I should think, above one and one-half inches below the surface in the anterior wall of the abdomen. Of course, we can only estimate the depth at which the ball lies below the surface. I should think the President had lost about forty-five pounds of flesh. Taking this fact into consideration, together with what we can feel by pressing the flesh about the spot where the bullet lies, I should think its depth is about one and one half inches." It is not probable that the bullet will be cut out just now, or indeed at any time unless, after the President begins to walk, the ball moves downwards where it might prove dangerous. The wonderful little instrument of Prof. Bell, appears to be a perfect success, and will prove invaluable should a surgical operation be necessary hereafter.

A New Railroad.

A charter has been issued from the office of the secretary of the commonwealth to "The Susquehanna, Pittsburg and Western Railway Company, for the term of 999 years, for the purpose of constructing and operating a railroad from the city of Pittsburg, by the most advantageous route, through the counties of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Armstrong, Clearfield, Centre, Clinton, Huntingdon, Mifflin, Union and Lycoming, to the town of Milton on the Susquehanna river, in Northumberland county, the length of said road to be 225 miles, gauge to be four feet eight and a half inches, capital stock $5,622,000. President, James S. Negley: directors, H. E. Collins, Frank Hunnings, James S. Negley, jr., William N. Riddle, H. T. Hanna, Pittsburg; Delose E. Culver, Jersey City; F. W. Lockwood and Charles Scidler, New York City.

The corporators of this new railroad are the same as those who some days ago secured a merger of the New York, Pittsburg and Chicago of Ohio, the New York, Pittsburg and Chicago of Pennsylvania and the Pittsburg and Chicago Railway companies of Pennsylvania. The consolidation forms a continuous line from Pittsburg to Toledo. If the new road is built a continuous line will be secured from Milton to Toledo At Milton a connection can be made with the Philadelphia and Reading and thus a western outlet made for that road. There is considerable speculation as to whether this is the object of the new road.

CORRUPTION IN LYCOMING.

Harvey S. Wells, one of the editors of the Williamsport Sun and Banner has, over his own name, published a most damaging series of charges against the Commissioners of Lycoming county. He asserts that they have been guilty of the most shameless official corruption, where by the county treasury has been plundered of thousands of dollars. The general charge is "that the present board of Lycoming County Commissioners have been robbing the tax payers of the county of hundreds and hundreds of dollars, by a system of official peculation that is but little removed from direct stealing; that they have been awarding contracts and making appointments which have been notoriously venal, for which they were indirectly, and in some instances directly paid the money to replenish their own pockets; that they have been using the machinery of their office to further their own re election; that they have sold tax duplicates, using a third party to the bargain to conceal their own connection with the affair; that they have willfully violated their oath of office wherein they have sworn, "That I will not knowingly receive, directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing for the performance or non performance of any act or duty pertaining to my office, other than the compensation allowed by law.'"

Then follow thirteen specifications setting forth in detail the various operations by which the Commissioners have filled their pockets at the expense of the people, and alleging various corrupt bargains by which they have profited.

As may be imagined the publication of this statement has created a profound sensation. All the accused Commissioners are candidates for re-election and their chances are seriously impaired by the charges preferred. Mr. Wells ends his formidable indictment as follows:

"I make the above charges, stand prepared to prove them in a court of justice, and challenge the Board of Commissioners to the issue"

If the Commissioners can make any defence to the grave accusations preferred against them, they should take immediate steps to clear themselves. The charges are too specific to be met by a general denial and the Democrats of Lycoming county will not be satisfied with anything less than a thorough and complete investigation. At present the situation of the Commissioners is anything but pleasant.

A BURNING MINE.

On Friday afternoon last, a fire broke out in No 9 colliery, near Tamaqua, operated by Charles Parrish & Co. It is the largest of nine collieries owned by the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company and employs between 500 and 600 hands. Samuel Powell, the engineer, was repairing one of the steam pipes, when the lamp on his head ignited a prop made dry as punk by the heat from the pipes. Powell had turned away before he discovered the fire he had unconsciously started, but soon after noticed it and set about heroically to extinguish it. It had already gained such headway that he was powerless and soon fell exhausted, in which condition he was found and the alarm given. An explosion of sulphur soon followed and completed the work. The air-shafts acted as flues and furnished a powerful draft to the fire. Superintendent W. D. Zehner was promptly on the scene, and organizing the excited men in gangs, proceeded to brattice up the tunnel and to stop the outlet of the air shaft, from which the flames were bursting to great heights. The steam from nineteen boilers was turned on the fire and this, it is believed, will smother the flames.

No. 9 is not only the largest, but the most profitable and extensively worked, of all the company's mines, and its stoppage is a great loss to the company, as well as a serious calamity to Lansford, which is almost entirely supported by it. The scene at the outbreak of the fire was harrowing in the extreme. A large number of men were in the works, and their wives and relatives hurried to the mouth of the tunnel with the wildest cries of distress. The mine is provided with ample means of exit, and all escaped, not a man or mule being injured. The workings are carried on by means of a tunnel direct into the mountain and a slope to the lower lift, and are of vast extent and great intricacy. It is entirely owing to the prompt action of Superintendent Zehner, zealously seconded by the foreman of the departments and bosses of gangs, that the fire did not obtain such headway as would have resulted in a long stoppage or utter destruction of the mine. The indications now are that work can be resumed in a short time.

DELANEY MAD.

A despatch from Wilkes-Barre in the Philadelphia Press of last Monday says that Senate Librarian Delaney is out in the Luzerne and Lackawanna Sunday and other papers in a lengthy card, in which he not only denies in toto the charges made against him by the Press, but masquerades as a bona-fide reformer, saying that when first assigned to his present position two years ago he found that a gang of thieves had been robbing the State and at once set about doing what he could to correct the evil, in which efforts, he adds, he had the cordial assistance of Governor Hoyt, Auditor General Schell, and others. He congratulates the public that one by one the gang was driven out in consequence of this reformatory movement of his, "until now there is not a single member of it with a contract or a foothold of any kind on the Hill." He gives figures to show what he claims to be a net saving to the State in the cost of supplies for the years 1879 and 1881 over the years 1877 and 1878 of $164,833.25. When the Press expose was made the Wilkes-Barre Record made haste to repudiate, in the name of the Republicans of Luzerne, all responsibility for Delaney's Republicanism, and Delaney in his letter says he will at a future time make revelations concerning Dr. Bradley, the editor of the Record, who was a clerk of the House a few years ago, that will make him hide his shameless head. There is no telling what revelations may be made by the men who have been hard hit by the Press, but certain it is that before the matter ends, the people will know more about Harrisburg "ways that are dark" than they ever dreamed of.

MORMON BISHOP MURDERED.

A special to the Times, from San Francisco, Cal., says: News has been received here that Bishop Philip Klinger Smith, at one time of high standing and influence in the Mormon church, and the exposer of the Mountain Meadow massacre and a participant therein, is dead. His body was found in a prospect hole in Sonora, Mexico, under circumstances indicating murder. Bishop Smith died as he expected. After convicting John D. Lee, of the Mountain Meadow massacre, he said: "I know the church will kill me sooner or later—it is only a question of time." After returning from the trial, by order of the church his wife left him, and he started South and lived in Arizona. In that territory two attempts were made to kill him.

People Come for Miles to witness the MARVEL OF THE AGE.
LA PETITE MAUD D'ALMA.

Only eight years of age, the Child Queen of the Lofty Cord, will, every afternoon at precisely 1:30 o'clock, execute the difficult and perilous feat of walking upon a single rope from the ground to the dome of the canvas, a distance of 120 feet in length and 45 feet high. She walks upon the high rope in mid-air as upon the solid earth, and performs many blood-chilling feats. She is the youngest and only child in America performing this act, and we challenge the world for her equal.

BLOOMSBURG,
AUGUST 10.

The Kentucky election on Monday resulted in a sweeping Democratic victory. The legislature will be very largely Democratic and this ensures the election of a Democratic United States Senator to succeed Mr. Beck. It is quite probable that the gentleman may be his own successor, unless his advocacy of Stanley Matthews for justice of the Supreme Court militates against him. Mr. Beck has been an able and efficient Senator, but his efforts in behalf of Matthews do not entitle him to any favor from his party.

Cuticura
THE GREAT SKIN CURE.

Itching and Scaly Diseases, Humors of the Scalp and Skin Permanently Cured.

RINGWORM.
Geo. W. Brown, 48 Marshall St., Providence, R. I., cured by Cuticura Remedies of a Ringworm Humor got at the barber's, which spread all over his ears, neck and face, and for six years resisted all kinds of treatment.

SKIN HUMOR.
F. H Drake, Esq., agent for Harper & Bros., Detroit, Mich., gives an astonishing account of his case (eczema rodent), which had been treated by a consultation of physicians without benefit, and which speedily yielded to the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura Soap externally.

SCALD HEAD.
H. A. Raymond, Auditor F. W., J. & S. R. R., Jackson, Mich., was cured of Scald Head of nine years' duration by the Cuticura Remedies.

ECZEMA.
Hon. Wm. Taylor, Boston, Mass., permanently cured of a humor of the face and scalp (eczema) that had been treated unsuccessfully for twelve years by many of Boston's best physicians and most noted specialists, as well as European authorities.

MILK CRUST.
Mrs. Bowers, 143 Clinton St., Cincinnati, speaks of her sister's child, who was cured of milk crust which resisted all remedies for two years. Now a fine, healthy boy, with a beautiful head of hair.

FALLING HAIR.
Frank A. Bean, Steam Fire Engine 6, Boston, was cured of alopecia, or falling of the hair, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, which completely restored his hair when all said he would lose it.

Thomas Lee, 2276 Frankford Av., Philadelphia, afflicted with dandruff, which for twenty years had covered his scalp with scales one-quarter of an inch in thickness, cured by Cuticura Remedies.

TREATMENT.
The Cuticura Treatment is the internal use of the Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures.

For Sunburn, Tan and Greasy Skin use Cuticura Soap, an exquisite toilet, bath and nursery sanative, fragrant with delicious flower odors and healing balsams.

It is as much the duty of a consistent Democrat to vote at the delegate elections, as at the general elections.

The campaign has been lively this week,and it is probable that there will be an exciting contest at the Convention on Tuesday next.

Every good Democrat should attend the delegate election to-morrow, and poll his vote for the best men on the ticket.

This is the time for dysentery. Victims of the malady should take no solid food, drink rice water and rest quietly by lying down, and they will need no medicine.

Rattlesnakes are unusually numerous this summer, and there have been more large reptiles killed than we have noted for many years. One snake is reported as having twenty one rattles.

The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin isn't doing anything in the way of investigating corruption in the county offices,but is crying lustily for the Democrats to prosecute the work. That's a cheap method of getting credit for good deeds.

The Wayne camp meeting will begin next Thursday and continue ten days. The indications are, that the attendance will be greater than ever before. Excursion tickets will be issued over the railroads on and after August 9th, and baggage will be checked through.

Capt. M. M. Brobst, of Catawissa,has accepted the general sales agency for the wholesale house of Francis Jordan & Sons, of Philadelphia. We congratulate the firm on securing the services of so genial and efficient a salesman and have no doubt that he will be successful in business.

Mr. Boyd Stiles, of Benton, while on the mountain one day last week was bitten by a rattlesnake. He having some onions in his pockets,pounded them up and tied them on the wound, and after drinking a large quantity of whiskey started home. He has almost recovered from the dangerous accident.

If you want to do something for the benefit of the Democratic party, show your COLUMBIAN to your neighbor who does not take it, and ask him to subscribe for it. It is not only the leading party paper, but is acknowledged by men of all parties to be the best journal published in the county.

The Temperance Journal says that "the way to resent an invitation to drink so that the insult will never be offered again is to take brandy that costs forty cents a glass." It may be remarked that the writer of the above displays altogether too much good taste as regards liquor for the editor of a temperance journal.

The Berwick Independent is authority for the statement that the pay roll of the Jackson & Woodin Manufacturing Company is $1500 per day. There are nearly 1200 workmen employed and the capacity of the works is twenty gondolas, or fifteen house cars per day, and from one hundred and fifty to two hundred car wheels per day.

The Sanitarium is over-crowded and we are informed that the architect is making plans for another building, to be much larger than either of the others and to be erected immediately. We understand from the medical officers that all Summer boarders have been refused and that none have or will be taken.

It is a disgrace to the intelligence of Columbia county that comparatively few of the voters of all parties take the county papers. There are about seven thousand voters, and of these we are fully satisfied that less than one-half are subscribers to the home papers. It may be that some of them take city papers, but if a man does not take interest enough in his own county affairs to keep posted,he is not likely to spend much time in reading city news.

Columbia county presents the singular spectacle of a man who deserted the Democratic party, joined the Greenbackers, was elected commissioner, and now has the cheek and effrontery to ask the Democracy to nominate and elect him for Register and Recorder. Unless we mistake the temper of our old Democratic friends of that county, Mr. Herring will be given a free permit to retire to private life and a solid Democrat will be put in the office of Register and Recorder—one who did not desert his party owing to his greed for office.—Milton Argus.

A few weeks ago there was a letting at the Commissioners' office for some work to be done at the bridges over Little Fishingcreek, near Mordansville. A number of persons were present and handed in sealed proposals for the jobs. We are informed by reliable authority that after all the bids were opened and read, Commissioner Herring said he had a bid at home which was handed to him but which he had forgotten to bring down. He was permitted to present it afterwards,and when opened it proved to be under that of the lowest bidder. It may have been all right, but it is not a fair nor honorable way to do business, and if there was no connivance about it, it is singular that he did not think of the bid handed him, until after the others were read. It is just such actions as this that has brought the Commissioners' office into disrepute for the past few years.

There was an exciting tussle in front of the Exchange Hotel on Monday afternoon. A young rough named Adolph Kester, under the influence of liquor, became boisterous and Constable Harris assisted by policeman J. C. Sterner proceeded to arrest him, but he resisted so vigorously that the attempt proved fruitless. He knocked the Constable down and while the officers were mopping him around in the mud he got in a kick with both feet on Harris' stomach. After a good deal of loud and profane talk on both sides, the officers let the man go, but why he was not put in the lock-up nobody could understand. The fact is he should have been arrested on a warrant for assault and battery and resisting an officer, and bound over to court. If such things happen a few more times, the police force of Bloomsburg will not inspire the lawless class with awe and fear to any great extent.

As the time is approaching under the Act of Assembly when it is lawful to kill squirrels, for the advantage of all interested, we publish the Act of Assembly bearing on the case:

SEC. 2. No person shall kill or expose for sale or have in his or her possession, after the same has been killed, any gray, black or fox squirrel between the first day of January and the first day of September in each year under a penalty of five dollars for each and every squirrel so killed, exposed for sale or had in possession.

This section is from the act to amend and consolidate the several acts relating to game and fish, approved the 3rd day of June, A. D., 1878. There was not any general game law passed in 1879, the legislature did not meet in 1880, and the supplements passed in 1881 do not change this section of the act of 1878 in relation to the time for shooting squirrels.

MINERS' STRIKE.

The miners at Logan Colliery, Centralia, recently struck for an advance. They work by the car, and the cars used are of two sizes. For the large car one dollar is paid, and for the small one ninety cents. The miners say that the small cars contain as much coal as the large ones, on account of the heavy topping. They say that the highest wages made by any miner at this colliery for last month was one dollar and ninety cents per day, and that the average wages made are below this.

PERSONAL.

Miss Annie Buckingham, of Harrisburg, is visiting Miss Hattie McKelvy.

E. R. Ikeler and family are spending a week at Cape May.

L. Wallace Evans has been appointed teacher of a school at Eckley, Luzerne county. His term begins August 15th.

We are informed by Dr. Reber, the attending physician, that Dr. J. B. McKelvy is recovering from his illness.

Major Jos. Coons and Mr. Simon Long, prominent citizens of Wilkes-Barre,are in town the guests of Mr. David Lowenberg.

ATTENTION, ELECTION OFFICERS.

According to the new law regulating delegate elections, it is necessary for the officers of election to be sworn, under pains and penalties for neglect. The oaths have been printed on the List of Voters, with instructions to presidents and clerks. We desire to call the attention of the officers to the importance of taking the oaths prescribed, as a neglect so to do, may lead to the throwing out of the vote of the district. The law is peremptory and must be obeyed, and we are thus particular in dwelling upon the subject, because heretofore no such duty has been necessary. Let there be no omissions and, consequently, no disputes in Convention.

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

Patrick Lavelle, of Centralia, accompanied by a Mr. Burke, having taken refuge under a tree during the heavy thunder storm on Friday afternoon, the former was struck by lightning and instantly killed, the stroke passing down the tree to a level with Mr. Lavelle's head, where it left the tree with the results above stated. Mr. Lavelle leaves a mother and several brothers and sisters to mourn his sudden demise. The funeral took place in the Catholic cemetery, Sunday, and by some means or other the report became current that on Monday he was heard to "halloo" in the grave. On the strength of this rumor his friends ordered the disinterment of the corpse, and on removing the earth from off the body, he was discovered to be dead,not having moved in the coffin. The grave was again filled. The rumor caused a tremendous excitement in the place,fully one half the village witnessing the disinterment.—Catawissa News Item.

VENNOR'S GUESSES AT AUGUST.

It seems from the Canada papers that Mr. Henry G. Vennor has extended his "revised" predictions so that they include August in detail, as given below: August 1, probably warm and oppressive; 2 and 5, generally pleasant weather, fairly warm days,and cool to cold evenings and nights; 6, fair and pleasant; 7, Sunday, heat and storms; 8 and 10, sultry weather with heavy showers, cooler evenings and nights; 11–13, heat again in the United States, with cloudy and sultry weather, storms in Canada; 14, Sunday, cooler change; 15, cooler to cold and cloudy and pleasant; 16; storms throughout portions of Virginia; 17 and 18, hailstorms and frosts probably in some portions; 19 and 20, heat and storms 21 sultry and showery; 22, sultry and windy; 23 and 24, heat and wind; 25 and 27 heavy storms on the Lakes,on the St. Lawrence and around New York; 27–29, cooler weather with rains and frosts in the northern section; 30 and 31, fair and pleasant weather, with cool evenings and nights, with indications of returning heat.

A BIG SHOW.

Bloomsburg is to have a circus at last and stand on an even footing with her neighbors. On Wednesday next, the 10th inst., Main & Co's new International Show will pitch its tents here and give an afternoon and evening performance. In addition to the usual features of a show of this kind, there is a pantomime company, a troupe of educated dogs, and divers novel and interesting specialties not to be found, ordinarily, under canvas. Among the performers are, Maud D'Alma, the child rope walker, Kelly and Hanly Irish sketch artists, Burch, Pettit and Kelly the clowns, Mons. D'Alma of the Iron Jaw. There are also tumblers, contortionists, jugglers,vocalists, dancers, &c., all of whom form a strong company and offer a very interesting and amusing programme. The street parade is announced for one o'clock in the afternoon. As this is the first show of the kind this season, worthy of patronage, it is fair to presume that the tent will be well filled at both performances. The admission is only twenty-five cents—a fact that will have due weight with sight-seers.

BUCKHORN NEWS.

The Sunday schools of this place, will hold a basket picnic on Saturday in Dora Dent's woods. Several ministers will address the gathering.

Rev. A. Brittain held the Quarterly Conference and preached on Sunday. Rev. T. O. Clees will preach on Sunday evening, the 7th.

A number of our people intend tenting at Mountain Grove.

There are many sick in this vicinity at present.

Miss Hettie Pursel is visiting friends at Hughesville.

Mr. William Dent and wife,of Danville spent Sunday here.

The order of O. U. A. M. has been reorganized, and is receiving new members at every meeting.

Mr. William Kauster has returned from the west.

Mr. A. B. Hartman recently in one day reset the tire on twenty wheels, besides doing other work.

Mrs. Catharine Kline, of Williamsport, and Mrs. Mary Clauser, of Topeka, Kansas, are the guests of N. P. Moore, Esq.

THE TOWN COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the Town Council, held on Wednesday evening last, all the members were present. The grade of Ridge Alley was approved as returned by the surveyor. The Council in a body agreed to examine the grade on Fourth and Penn streets on Thursday. Mr. Brockway presented a petition from Mrs. Jane E. Brown, praying for the removal of the pump in front of the Central Hotel, and the erection of a veranda in front, not to extend more than four feet from the front of the building. Laid upon the table. Building permits granted to B. H. Vannatta and Messrs. Neal on Seventh street. Council granted William Rupert $5 for keeping the gutters and walks in order at Market Square. A number of bills were ordered to be paid. A resolution was adopted to issue bonds to the amount of $3,000, at 4½ per cent. interest payable semi-annually. This is to meet an excess of the present outstanding orders and current expenses of the year, beyond the taxes assessed. The paving on Catherine street was ordered to be done within sixty days, between Third and Sixth streets. On motion, Newton Boone was appointed Collector of Town tax.

A NOVELTY IN MONEY ORDERS.

Postmaster General James,says the Pittsburg Post, has hit upon a plan of facilitating the transmission through the mails, at a cheap rate, of small sums of money. The new device is an improvement upon the system of postal orders recently adopted by the English postal authorities. The improvement consists of three columns of figures, one to represent dollars, the second tens and the third units. Two denominations of these orders are to be issued—one for all sums within $2.50, and the other for all sums within $5. The five dollar card has four figures and a cipher in the dollar column and all the numerals in each of the other columns. The postmaster selling the order will designate the amount to be drawn by punching the figures in the respective columns. The orders will be payable to bearer, and the postoffice will not be responsible for their safe delivery any more than for fractional currency, for which they are intended as a substitute. Both sets of orders are to be printed on bank note paper, to be finely engraved and other precautions taken against counterfeiting. It is expected that the government will be able to sell them at from 2 to 3 cents for a $2.50 order and from 4 to 5 cents for a $5 order. The postmaster will enter the amount of the order in writing on a stub, which will be the only check the department will need, and will contain only the amount of the order, the date of issue and the name of the office upon which the order is drawn. This will do away with a great deal of clerical labor, since the names of the remitter and the payee will not be entered at all in the records as is done in the money order transactions, nor will any advices be issued. In order to prevent the use of the postal orders as currency, they are to be redeemable only for three months after date of issue.

IN TROUBLE.

At the criminal term sessions in March last, a bill of indictment was found against O. B. Melick, on a charge preferred by John F. Porter, for obtaining money under false pretenses. He had sold to Mr. Porter some territorial rights for the manufacture and sale of a certain kind of paint for roofing purposes, etc. Melick claiming that he had a patent right,through another party, on the paint. It was afterwards ascertained that no such patent had been issued from the patent office. Melick gave bail for his appearance at court at the October session, and shortly after left Williamsport. The next heard of him was, that he was under arrest in Cattaraugus county, under the charge of forgery in the third degree, brought about as follows: A stranger came to town with a draft for $400; the bank officers were acquainted with Melick, and he (Melick) told the bank people that he was acquainted with the man, and that he was all right, and the money was paid. The man disappeared directly after, and the draft proved to be a forgery. Melick was arrested and locked up. About the same time a man had been locked up for drunkenness. The next morning an officer went to Melick in the jail, supposing him to be the man who had been placed there for drunkenness, and told him to get out and try and keep sober. Melick saw at once the mistake, and was smart enough to take advantage of it. As soon as he recovered his liberty he left that section of country hurriedly. A reward was offered for his capture. He went from there direct to Lock Haven, but a telegram arrived in time to secure his arrest. The New York State authorities immediately made a requisition on Governor Hoyt for the body of the prisoner. At this juncture, J. R. Reardon, Esq., district attorney of Lycoming county, put in his claim for the prisoner, and a conflict of authorities ensued. District Attorney Reardon went to Harrisburg and laid the matter before the department, and upon a hearing Governor Hoyt refused to surrender the party to the New York State authorities, as there was a bill of indictment pending against him in Lycoming county, Pa. Upon application for a writ of habeas corpus from the Lycoming county authorities, Judge Mayer surrendered Melick, and, accompanied by the District Attorney and Deputy Sheriff Yeager, he came to Williamsport and was lodged in jail. It may be stated that Melick also escaped from Lock Haven, while he was under arrest there. He found a number of friends there, and after telling them a very plausible story they agreed to be responsible for his appearance. He was then given his liberty under promise to not leave the place before the return of District Attorney Reardon from Harrisburg. But this promise he violated, as it was soon learned that he had left the town. Officers were sent after him and he was overtaken near Jersey Shore. Those who were his bail here, no doubt feel happy over the successful efforts of our District Attorney. Other bail is now being hunted up for Melick, but the parties that are working for it should be aware of the fact that in case he is liberated here, he will be picked up immediately by a New York officer and taken to Cattaraugus on the requisition from the Governor of New York.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

Legislation for Teachers

The following act has been signed by the Governor and is now the law.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania in general assembly met,and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same: That from and after the passage of this act, it shall be the duty of the school directors of the several school districts of this commonwealth, and they are hereby required to allow the school teachers employed in said school districts, who are actually engaged in teaching school therein,the time and wages whilst attending and participating in the exercises of the annual county institute for the improvement of teachers.

SECTION 2. That at the close of the annual sessions of the said institutes, it shall be the duty of the several city,borough and county superintendents, to make a report to each board of school directors in their respective jurisdictions, setting forth the number of days that each teacher shall have attended and participated in the exercises of the annual teachers' institute, which said report shall be the basis for allowing the teachers their time and wages: Provided, That the provisions of this act shall not extend to the first school district of Pennsylvania nor to the counties wherein special laws, regulating or relating to county institutes, are in force.

BARBED WIRE

are undoubtedly the cheapest and most durable fence made, is not effected by fire, wind or flood,does not cause snow drifts, takes fewer posts and stock cannot push it down. Our wire is four pointed, is made of two strands of number 12 best galvanized steel wire twisted together just enough to allow for contraction and expansion in Summer and Winter, barbs are fastened every seven inches. The use of barbed wire is no longer an experiment, as last year over one hundred thousand miles were put up. We believe our wire to be the best and cheapest now manufactured because it is made of the best steel wireand runs 15 feet to the pound having the greatest strength and visibility with the least weight of any made. SUGGESTIONS OF AND FOR THE SEASON.

From the American Agriculturist for August.

With this month begins the fall work and the more promptly it is entered upon the better. The stubbles are now idle, and they can be plowed at once for the fall sowing, thus preventing a growth of weeds, from ripening their seeds. Wheat requires a deep rich, and mellow soil. All the hard lumps should be broken up by the harrow and pulverized, using a field roller to aid in this work, if the harrow does not bring them fine. Bringing of the soil to a finer state is now recognized, and there are a great many "pulverizers" upon the market especially designed for this work. To those who cannot afford (or think they cannot) such an implement, the common harrow and a log roller will be sufficient, if used thoroughly to prepare the soil as a bed for the seed. The old method of broad cast sowing of wheat is fast being superseded by the superior one of drilling the grain. The drill secures uniformity of depth and by patting all the grains in a proper place for growth, there is a saving in the amount of seed used—six pecks of good plump grain—and no other should be used—is sufficient per acre,if sowed with a drill. Much depends upon the variety of seed sown, and the farmer should make a study of this matter, to determine which is the best kind of wheat for his soil and locality. Early sowing is the best, except when there is danger from the Hessian fly. Late sowed wheat makes such a poor growth before the frosts come that it is not in good shape for winter, and it is not sure of giving even a fair crop. The preparation of the soil for rye is the same as for wheat, though it will do well on a poorer soil than wheat. A soil that is rich enough for a good crop of rye, can be made, in many cases, to produce a more paying crop by adding a dressing of 300 pounds of any good fertilizer, and sowing it to wheat. The value of rye straw in some localities may make the rye crop, grain and straw together, more profitable than even a good crop of wheat. This only is the case near cities where the straw brings a high price. A number of crops may be grown for fall fodder. White turnips may be sown this month, and in good soil, with proper care, 600 to 800 bushels of this excellent food may be obtained per acre. These roots need to be fed out rapidly, but if carefully stored will last until January. Millet, if sown early this month, on rich soil, will make an excellent feed for late fall; and rye, sowed now, if not needed for pasture, produce a fine growth for the spring soiling of the farm stock.

The root crops,mangels and beets and field cabbages need frequent cultivation during this month, and until the leaves cover the ground. If the weeds are allowed to grow, and the soil is left unstirred, the crop will be small. Sugar beets are best if earthed up at the hoeings, so that the roots are entirely below ground. Mangels do not require this "hilling up." Potatoes should be harvested just as soon as they are ripe, otherwise the tubers may start into a new growth. They are much more apt to be affected by the "rot" if left long in the soil. If this "disease," which is a fungus growth, makes its appearance, the vines should all be burned so soon as the potatoes are dug, as the spores are thus destroyed in vast quantities. When other work is out of the way, much may be done to make the spring work lighter by plowing in the fall. When this is done early it is much like a fallow in its effect upon the soil—it kills the weeds, loosens the soil, and allows of chemical changes that make plant food available. Heavy clay soil is much improved by early fall plowing. Muck is a valuable material for the barnyard, stable and compost heap, and can be dug with the greatest ease at this season of the year. It may be drawn from the bed to the heap near by, where it can dry out, and afterwards be taken to the place where it is to be stored for use. During the dry weather of this month drains can be dug with greater comfort and less expense than when the soil is full of water. The value of a drain depends upon the thoroughness with which the work is done. It should be a permanent improvement.

Turnips.

There is no crop that the farmer puts in the ground that pays him better than the turnip. We are aware that with some persons it is looked upon as of little account, but it has never received the consideration to which it is really entitled, and those who turn up their noses at it are not genuine farmers. It is a crop, moreover, that is put in when the hurrying work of the season is over; when it occupies ground that has already been used for something else The cultivation also, say of from one to two acres of turnips, involves comparatively little labor. The crop, too, is harvested in November, when there is almost no other labor on the farm to interfere with it. As to the variety of seed to sow, we believe there is no turnip equal to the purple top. A top dressing of bone manure is almost indispensable to an abundant crop. For an early crop take the Early Flat Dutch and sow broadcast,and now is the time. The Purple Top for the regular farm crop. This should be sowed in drills thirty inches apart, and when the turnips are the size of a hickory nut thin out to eight or ten inches apart in the row. They seldom fail in affording a satisfactory crop. The crop can be put in the first half of August. Where land is a little short, sow among the corn at the last working. They will not interfere in the least with that crop, generally, and very little when it is harvested. Be sure always to procure seed from established seed houses of reputation, and use that grown here instead of in Europe if you wish the best and safest article.

An illustration of the value of revaccination is afforded by a report just furnished by the chief medical officer of the General Post Office in England. This report relates to an average number of 10,404 persons employed in the postal service in London, all of whom have been required to undergo revaccination on admission to the service, unless that operation has been performed within seven years previously. Among these persons,during ten years 1870 1880,there has not been a single fatal case of small pox, and in only ten instances have there been non fatal attacks, all of which were of a very slight character. In the telegraph department, where the enforcement of revaccination has not been carried out with quite the same completeness, 12 cases have occurred in the same period among a staff averaging 1,458 in number. Eight of these attacks were of persons who had not been revaccinated, and one proved fatal. The remaining four were of revaccinated persons, who all perfectly recovered without pitting. This experience, like that of the nurses of the small-pox hospitals, seems to show that revaccinated persons enjoy absolute immunity from severe attacks of small pox, and that their risk of catching that disease at all, even in the most modified form, is infinitesimal.

A correspondent tells of an amusing incident that occurred last week on a train that was crossing the Rocky Mountains: "A travelling peddler undertook in the cars to sell a large "diamond" ring to a miner who had made his pile. "Humph," said the miner, after critically examining the ring, "they've got common stone up in the diggins where I've been that'll cut that diamond all to pieces!" "If you'll find a piece of stone that will cut that diamond I'll give it to you," said the peddler. "All right," said the miner, "if I can't cut that diamond with a stone, I'll buy it of you." Thereupon the miner took the ring in his hand and pulled from his vest pocket a small piece of brown-looking stone, similar to a bit of dark free stone, except the grain was very fine, and with this he proceeded to cut and scratch the "diamond" with several ugly looking gashes. A group of passengers that had gathered about the miner were amazed,but while they smiled, the peddler with his dismond withdrew discomfited. "That little piece of brown stone," explained the miner, "is a piece of corundum that I got on the Rocky Mountains and it's the best diamond tester in the world. It won't scar a genuine diamond, but will everlastingly cut up pieces of glass or quartz."

A GOOD FOUNDATION.

One of the greatest troubles of our people is weakness of the stomach. As this soon causes indigestion, nervousness and rheumatism, they prevail in almost every American household. There is positively no need for anybody to suffer from these painful troubles who can buy a 50 cent bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic; for this superior medicine always tones up the stomach and nervous system, and keeps the kidneys active in carrying off the foul matter, thus leaving a good foundation for perfect health.—N. O. Picayune.

While all the world nowadays knows of the torpedo, invented and named by Fulton, as a machine to blow up ships, comparatively few know that it takes its name from a fish, of marvellous electrical properties, which was anatomized by the famous surgeon John Hunter. The torpedo is found in the Mediterranean the Bay of Biscay, and the Southern English and Irish waters. The ancients employed it as a therapeutic agent. It is believed to use its extraordinary powers to benumb a big enemy or to capture a smaller fish. It loves to lie in sand, in which it will bury itself by flapping its extremeties, throwing the sand over its back. Tread on it then and you will lie prone in a moment. It is sometimes sold for food in French markets.

BABY SAVED.

We are so thankful to say that our baby was permanently cured of a dangerous and protracted irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.—The parents, Rochester, N. Y. See another column. —Buffalo Express.

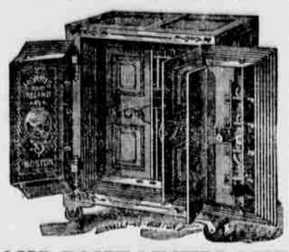
THE ONLY EIGHT FLANGE SAFE MADE IN THE WORLD.



AND CONTAINING OUR

Patent Inside Bolt Work,

LATEST FROM MAINE.

Lock's Mill's, Oxford co., Me.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland:

Gents:—On the 22nd of November, 1879, our spool mill at this place, 50x6, two stories high, was totally consumed by fire, in which there was a large quantity of spool lumber, spools and blocks, all seasoned. The fire burned for three and a half days. We had one of your safes in our mill and Tuesday morning following, eighty hours after the fire, it was too hot to handle, being covered with burning blocks. Some time after it was opened and the contents were in a good state of preservation, not a book or paper being destroyed. I am satisfied with your safes and have purchased another, and can cheerfully recommend them to any one wishing to secure their valuables from being destroyed by fire.

Yours truly, I. G. TEBITS,

TREMENDOUS TEST.

Roasting Thirty Hours in a Bed of Red Hot Coals.

Corning, N. Y., January 6, '81.

Morris & Ireland Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:—On the night of the fire in our village on the 26th ult., I had in use one of your No. 5 Safes. I am pleased to inform you, after the floor gave way it fell into the cellar, into a heap of burning coal, where it roasted for thirty hours. Our citizens and myself gave up the hope of anything being saved in it. On being taken from the ruins I was happily disappointed to find my cash, vouchers and other articles of value perfectly preserved. The combination works well now. I am satisfied your new and improved work, one of which, a No. 20, I have ordered of your agent to-day, will afford absolute protection in any fire.

Truly Yours, E. S. BARNES.

STILL AHEAD.

Rochester, N. H., Dec. 10, '80.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland:

Dear Sirs:—In the disastrous fire which took place in this town Nov. 30, the Morris and Ireland safe in my store was subjected to a severe test, being thrown into the cellar and a huge mass of debris fell upon it, and it was in the ruins some two days. I take pleasure in informing you that upon excavation it was opened without trouble and the contents were found to be unhurt. I cheerfully recommend your safe and should I want another I should certainly purchase one from you.

Yours truly, O. W. HOWE.

STILL ANOTHER.

From the Great Fire in Troy, New York.

Troy, N. Y., December 11, 1879.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland, Boston:

Gentlemen:—After witnessing the charred books out of the safes opened, also one of my own which was another make, which was lost in the heat of the fire like the No. 6 lately purchased of you, which was in the fire over forty-eight hours, and had to be continually played on during Monday night, as it was completely surrounded with burning muslins and other inflamable material, on opening it in the ruins Tuesday afternoon, I was pleased to find the contents, books, papers and money were all preserved in a remarkably good condition. With this proof of the fire qualities of your safe we have given your agent an order for one No. 8 safe.

Yours respectfully, DAVIS & CO.

THE GREAT

BOSTON FIRE.

JANUARY, 1880.

Morris & Ireland's Safe Again Triumphant—Messrs. Rice, Kendall & Co's. Large Safe Reveals Its Valuable contents Intact, after being subject d to intense heat for one Hundred and Thirty Hours.

Boston, January 2, 1880.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland, Boston:

Gents:—On the night of December 28, last, the building occupied in part by us at No. 91 Federal street, and which was four stories high and about 200 feet deep, caught fire and was destroyed, with all its contents, consisting of a very large stock of paper, Cook Binders' materials and other merchandize. While several other large buildings adjoining ours were burned at the same time, the flames were extinguished the following day, but our stock continued to burn for days thereafter. After a lapse of 130 hours we were able to have our safe dug out from the ruins and opened, and were pleased to find all the contents well preserved. The safe contained our most valuable books, papers, policies, etc., and we now feel sure that our judgment was correct in buying one of your safes, which we decided to do after knowing the wonderful record of your safes in the great Boston fire of '72. We regard the protection of your safe as most remarkable, and this fire is a guaranty of its security to those who may wish to purchase.

Yours very truly, RICE, KENDALL & CO.

Also a Communication from Ex-Governor Alex. Rice.

Boston, January 2, 1880.

MESSRS MORRIS & IRELAND.

Gents: I have made careful examination of the contents of the safe purchased of you some years since by the firm of Rice, Kendall & Co., and which was subject to the test of enormous heat in the great fire of last Sunday night. I regard the security of the safe under the circumstances as most remarkable. None of the contents were burned, nor were any of them so injured by heat as to be materially damaged. I should commit any securities to your safe hereafter with additional confidence. With great respect, yours very truly,

Alexander H. Rice.

THE LATEST YET.

BUT THE SAME RESULT,

So. Norridgewock, Me., Feb. 1, 1881.

Messrs Morris & Ireland, Boston Mass.:

The safe I bought of you last October was in a two-story wooden building, which burned Jan. 25. The building took fire in the night, and the safe building and its contents, fell into the cellar upon a pile of dry wood, making a hot fire which lasted for ten hours. The outside of the safe was heated red hot. It melted the handle and dial off the door The contents consisted of watches, jewelry, silverware, books papers &c., all of which came out in good condition. Papers lying against the inside of the safe were not injured. The safe shows for itself what it is, and I feel well satisfied with what I has done. Please write what you can allow for it toward a new one, and oblige,

O. F. HALL.
